THE INSTITUTE

THE INSTITUTE OF RADIO ENGINEERS, located at 1 East 79th Street, is an incorporated, nonprofit organization established for the advancement of the theory and practice of radio and electronics, including allied branches of engineering and the related arts and sciences.

Founded in May, 1912, through the efforts of three far-seeing engineers, Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, J. V. L. Hogan, and R. H. Marriott, the Institute has grown from its original roster of less than fifty members gained by the merger of two small professional societies, to an international membership of over 37,000.

The Institute prepares technical papers, reports and general information of interest to radio engineers. It holds meetings and discussions throughout the United States and Canada. It maintains committees for collating and standardizing the results of technical research and development. Among the fields covered in these activities are radio communication, sound broadcasting, television, marine and aerial guidance, electron tubes, radio-frequency measurements, engineering education, electron optics, sound and picture electrical recording and reproduction, power and manufacturing applications of radio and electronic technique, industrial electronic control and processes, medical electrical research and applications.

The management of the Institute of Radio Engineers resides in a Board of Directors selected from the body of Fellows and Senior Members, acting through an Executive Committee and the officers of the Institute. The President and Vice-President are elected annually from the body of Fellows and Senior Members.

MEMBERSHIP

Membership in the Institute is contingent upon experience and achievement in radio engineering and allied fields. The grade of Fellow is one of distinction, and appointment thereto by the Board of Directors is made on the basis of eminence and distinguished service. The grade of Special Member is similarly conferred by invitation only. Other grades—Senior Member, Member, Associate, and Student—are filled from applicants whose age, experience and attainments conform to the respective requirements set forth in the Institute's Constitution.

COMMITTEES*

The Institute has established some twenty-three technical committees covering specialized fields of radio engineering. Through the Institute, these committees (sometimes in collaboration with technical committees of other engineering societies) publish standards of accepted definitions of terms, and methods of measurements of physical quantities used in radio engineering practices.

CONVENTION

The Institute holds, at least once a year, a technical meeting for its entire membership. At this annual Convention, manufacturers exhibit equipment of recent design and interest to radio engineers. It is believed that by this means, mutual benefit accrues to both engineer and manufacturer through first-hand acquaintance with the activities of one another.

SECTIONS

Sections have been established throughout the United States, Canada, Territory of Hawaii, and Argentina, to hold meetings under the aegis of the Institute. The sections of the Institute are grouped into eight Regions, and each Region is represented on the Board of Directors by a Regional Director elected bi-annually from, and by, the membership of the respective Region.

PROFESSIONAL GROUPS

To serve special fields of interest, Professional Groups have been formed in each of several technical fields on an Institute-wide basis. These Groups organize meetings and conferences on subjects of special interest to their members. They issue, also, technical publications, called TRANSACTIONS, to provide a means for ensuring their membership proper coverage of their fields in the publications of the Institute, and for promoting recognition of their leaders among the Institute membership at large.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE INSTITUTE

Proceedings of the I.R.E.

Perhaps the most important single activity of the Institute is the publication of a technical journal. The first issue of the Proceedings of the Institute of Radio Engineers appeared in 1913. Established first as a quarterly, for the last twenty-six years Proceedings has been published in twelve numbers annually. In 1939, the name of the journal was shortened to Proceedings of the I.R.E.

The Proceedings of the I.R.E. is the official publication of The Institute of Radio Engineers. In it appear technical papers, discussions, and communications approved by the Editorial Review Committee and the Editorial Board of the Institute, as well as IRE Standards prepared by the Institute technical committees.

To date, about 5,000 papers on advanced research topics have been published in Proceedings, including mathematico-physical analyses of engineering problems, current engineering developments of equipment and methods, and commercial applications of engineering methods and products, historical papers, and tutorial papers covering specific aspects of radio and electronic engineering. In addition, space is devoted to news, book reviews, new products, and abstracts of papers published in technical publications the world over. The Proceedings of the I.R.E. is mailed gratis to all members; subscription price to nonmembers is $18.00 per year, $19.00 to foreign destinations.

Yearbooks and Directories

The first Yearbook was published in 1914, the second in 1916 and then annually between 1926 and 1932. Yearbooks were then published in 1937, 1942, and 1946. With the 1948 Yearbook, annual publication was resumed. In 1950 its name was changed to "Directory."

Standards

Standardization reports have been issued since 1913. Early reports were confined to the definition of technical terms and standard graphical symbols. Current reports include methods of testing equipment and measuring electronics quantities, and letter symbols and mathematical notation. Starting in 1949, IRE Standards have been published in the Proceedings, rather than as separate reports, to make them available to all members at no extra charge. Also, they are available in reprint form as follows:

The ballots after marking shall be placed in plain sealed envelopes, enclosed within mailing envelopes marked "Ballot" and bearing the member's written signature. Only ballots within signed outer envelopes shall be counted. No votes by proxy shall be counted. Only ballots arriving at the Institute office prior to the stated time limit shall be counted. The Tellers Committee shall count such votes and report to the Board of Directors at its next meeting. If the total vote be at least twenty per cent of the total voting membership and if at least sixty-seven per cent of all votes cast shall be favorable, the proposed amendment or amendments shall be immediately declared by the Tellers Committee to be adopted.

SEC. 3—Amendments shall take effect thirty days after their adoption but officers and officers-elect of the Institute at the time any amendment becomes effective shall continue in office until the end of the terms for which they were elected.

SEC. 4—Copies of the amendments shall be distributed to the members as soon as practicable after adoption.
