

Final Comments from the Advocate

The two experts supported the proposal.

The proposer has already made the modifications to the title as suggested and agreed with the following citation with the suggested minor changes:

In a major step toward modernization, the Darjeeling Municipality commissioned the Sidrapong Hydel Power Station in Darjeeling, West Bengal, on 10 November 1897. As the first hydroelectric power facility in the Indian subcontinent, it marked the beginning of the region's commercial hydropower infrastructure. This pioneering achievement laid the foundation for future hydroelectric development across India, and ushered in a transformative shift in the nation's socio-economic landscape.

As an advocate, I approve this proposal moving forward for the IEEE History Committee's consideration